Application for Product Engineer (Client Platform)

Dear Hiring Team,

I am writing to apply for the Product Engineer (Client Platform) position at Almedia. I have a Master's in Artificial Intelligence and three years of experience building and deploying AI applications, most recently as the only developer of a web tool that lets domain experts in the German energy sector work on their own data without an engineer in the loop.

That tool is the closest match to your Client Platform. At Kniit I built Expert Interface, a React front end on Python microservices, deployed on Azure, where experts validate and approve changes to a knowledge graph themselves. I owned the whole path behind it: ingestion, a LangGraph pipeline, Postgres, MongoDB and Neo4j for storage, and an MCP service that serves the graph in milliseconds. Parts of the process I automated with code, parts I made easy to see and act on, which is how I read your goal for the platform. For one high-volume source, deterministic code replaced the LLM calls and cut a projected $200,000 LLM budget to almost nothing.

At Covestro I shipped an agentic application with a React front end and a FastAPI back end, containerized with Docker and deployed to AWS with CDK and GitLab CI/CD. I worked with business stakeholders there to understand how they made decisions before I designed anything, and at Kniit I did the same with SAP domain experts and reported to the CTO. Turning open questions from non-technical teams into a clear decision about what to build is the part of the work I enjoy most.

I use Claude Code daily, with custom skills and agentic coding workflows, and I keep the code typed, documented and tidy so I can explain every layer of what was built. My production work is in Python and FastAPI. I have not used TypeScript, NestJS, Next.js, dbt or BigQuery in a job yet, and I would learn them on your codebase.

I am drawn to Almedia because the Client Platform sits at the core of the business: advertisers who can run their campaigns themselves make Freecash and its 95 million users more valuable to everyone, and a bootstrapped company has to build exactly that kind of tool well.

I am based in Berlin, hold an EU Blue Card and can start on 15 November 2026. Thank you for considering my application.

Kind regards,

Chandu Prasad Bhairapu
